ALICE WAKEFIELD

JEWELRY, KNITTING, PHOTOGRAPHY, & MISCELLANEOUS

Alice Wakefield travelled the world working for the Defense Department for over 40 years. She learned to knit from her mother at the age of 5. Knitting and needlework were great projects for stress relief during those long trips abroad. She started knitting baby blankets for her own children and then other family members and friends; over 300 in the last 35 years. She now knits more artistic pieces, some are displayed in Taos, NM. Alice has been making jewelry since 1995. Her pieces are inspired by colors and textures from around the globe. Her recent photography captures her fascination with architecture, clouds, & nature in New Mexico, Alaska, Arizona, California and other locations around the world. Most recently, her photographs have been displayed in Digital Showcases in Mexico City, London, Budapest, Manila, Johannesburg, Melbourne, Berlin, Vienna, and Amsterdam. She lives in Portal and participates in several other community projects and organizations.
